24 FIRST CAUSE FOR DISCIPLINE

25 (Sexual Misconduct)

26 16. Respondent is subject to disciplinary action under section 726 of the Code in that he 27 committed acts of sexual abuse and/or misconduct while treating patient CP. The circumstances 28 are as follows:

1           17. In 1994, patient CP and her husband, NV, met Respondent. Sometime in 1994
2 Respondent began to perform what he described as "bodyworks' treatments" on patient CP to 3 relieve stress. Patient CP told Respondent she was interested in being treated with bodywork to 4 relieve stress as a result of a trauma she had endured as a minor. Patient CP explained that while 5 a minor she was the victim of sexual abuse by a priest. Respondent said undergoing "bodyworks 6 treatments" would be beneficial in releasing both physical and psychological stress and trauma.
7 Respondent's "bodyworks treatments" consisted of acupressure and massage, and were 8 performed out of Respondent's 2211 Oak Street, Santa Monica, California residence. Respondent
9 told patient CP that he was not a licensed acupuncturist.

10           18. Over the next several years patient CP and her husband saw Respondent at social 11 gatherings, and learned they had mutual friends. During this time Respondent revealed that his 12 former wife had threatened to report him to the "Acupuncture Board" for unlicensed acupuncture 13 practice. Respondent told patient CP that as a result of the threats to report him to the Board he 14 began to attend an acupuncture school to obtain his license in 2003. When Respondent entered 15 acupuncture school he began to perform acupuncture treatments on Patient CP. When 16 Respondent obtained his acupuncture license in 2004 he continued to perform acupuncture 17 treatments on patient CP out of his residence.

18           19. In July 2004, patient CP and her husband NV decided to undergo In Vitro 19 Fertilization<sup>3</sup> (IVF) to conceive a child. Prior to beginning the IVF treatment Patient CP went to 20 Respondent at his residence for both acupuncture and bodywork treatments to prepare her body 21 for the IVF treatments. The first IVF treatment was unsuccessful. Patient CP continued to go to 22 Respondent at his residence for regular acupuncture treatments.

23           20. In January 2005, patient CP and her husband NV decided again that they wished to 24 conceive a child. They decided to undergo another round of IVF. Again, prior to beginning this

26           <sup>3</sup> In vitro fertilization is a procedure in which eggs (ova) from a woman's ovary are 27 removed. They are fertilized with sperm in a laboratory procedure, and then the fertilized egg 28 (embryo) is returned to the woman's uterus.

1 IVF treatment Patient CP went to Respondent at his residence for both acupuncture and 2 bodywork treatments to prepare her body for the IVF treatments. The second IVF treatment was 3 unsuccessful.

4 21. In July 2005, patient CP and her husband NV decided to try again to conceive a child.
5 To do this they decided to undergo yet another round of IVF. Once more, prior to beginning this 6 IVF treatment Patient CP again went to Respondent at his Santa Monica, California, residence for 7 both acupuncture and bodywork treatments to prepare her body for the IVF treatments. However, 8 when patient CP presented to Respondent for the acupuncture and bodywork treatments
9 Respondent suggested an additional treatment he called "moxy treatment" (moxibustion) to assist 10 her prior to undergoing IVF. Patient CP did not know what the moxibustion consisted of and 11 asked Respondent for an explanation.

12 22. Respondent explained that patient CP had a "damp uterus" and these treatments 13 would warm the uterus which might help her to conceive. Patient CP agreed to undergo several 14 of the moxibustion treatments. The treatments consisted of patient CP lying completely nude on 15 the treatment table under a sheet. Respondent approached her with several burning "moxy 16 sticks," spread her legs open, placed the burning sticks near her genital area, and then blew the 17 smoke toward her vagina.

18 23. Patient CP felt extremely uncomfortable throughout the treatment. However, she 19 trusted Respondent and believed he was performing the moxibustion treatments to help her 20 conceive. Thus, patient CP allowed Respondent to perform these moxibustion treatments in 21 addition to the acupuncture treatments prior to undergoing the IVF treatment.

22 24. Both patient CP and her husband NV were desperate to conceive a child, and trusted 23 that Respondent's treatments would contribute to the eventual success of the IVF treatments.
24 However, by January 2006, patient CP had undergone five unsuccessful IVF treatments. After 25 the last IVF treatment patient CP was suffering severe ovarian pain. Patient CP decided to return 26 to Respondent for acupuncture treatments to reduce the ovarian pain and reduce the trauma her 27 body had endured as a result of the IVF treatments.

28 25. On or about May 24, 2006, patient CP went to Respondent's Santa Monica,

1 California, residence for another acupuncture treatment. Patient CP completely undressed and lay
2 down on the treatment table covered by a sheet as she had for the prior treatments. Patient CP
3 explained to Respondent she was experiencing pain in her ovaries and her bladder area as a result 4 of the IVF treatments. Respondent performed acupressure on the areas where she told him she 5 was experiencing pain. Respondent then said he was "going to check for infections," but he did 6 not explain how he was going to do so.

7 26. Patient watched as Respondent put on rubber gloves and approached her as she lay on 8 the treatment table. Respondent then opened patient CP's legs and inserted his hand into her 9 vagina.

10 27. Patient CP was completely shocked by Respondent's behavior and simply froze.
11 Patient CP did not know what to do. Respondent eventually removed his hand from her vagina.

12 28. After Respondent withdrew his hand from patient CP's vagina he performed 13 acupuncture on the patient. Patient CP was still in a state of shock. When Respondent completed
14 the acupuncture treatment patient CP immediately dressed and left Respondent's treatment room 15 and went to her vehicle. Patient CP began to cry hysterically, and called her husband, NV, and 16 told him what happened during the acupuncture session.

17 29. Patient CP ultimately stopped crying, and was able to compose herself enough to 18 drive home. When she arrived home that day she contacted two other acupuncturists to ask each 19 of them if an acupuncturist was legally permitted to perform a vaginal examination. Patient CP 20 was told a vaginal examination was not part of an appropriate acupuncture treatment session, and 21 was urged to report Respondent's conduct to the police. Patient CP also contacted an employee at 22 the American Acupuncture Council<sup>4</sup> to explain what Respondent did during the acupuncture
23 treatment session which occurred that day. Patient CP was encouraged to report Respondent's 24 actions to the Board as being outside of the permissible scope of his license.

25 30. Due to her outrage at Respondent's actions during the May 24, 2006, examination,

26 _____
27 <sup>4</sup> The American Acupuncture Council is the largest and oldest provider of acupuncture 28 insurance in the country. The company has three decades of experience defending acupuncturists from wrongful malpractice claims.

1 patient CP then telephoned Respondent from her residence while NV listened to the conversation
2 on their phone extension. During that phone conversation patient CP expressed her indignation 3 about what happened during the May 24, 2006, treatment session to Respondent, and told him he 4 had no right to perform a vaginal exam on her.

5 31. Respondent first responded to patient CP's anger by repeatedly justifying his actions 6 as a normal part of an exam. Respondent then apologized, and said he wanted to make it up to 7 patient CP. Patient CP then terminated the phone call.

8 32. Respondent phoned patient CP at her home the following day. Respondent 9 repeatedly claimed he had done nothing wrong, nor was he trying to hurt her. Respondent also 10 said he was surprised patient CP was questioning his actions especially because he was only 11 trying to help her during all of the years he had treated her.

12 33. Patient CP decided not to go to the police to report what occurred. Patient CP 13 believed that, based on what occurred when she was a minor and she reported her abuse by a 14 priest, that she would once again have to relive Respondent's abuse through a criminal 15 investigation and subsequent trial.

16 34. On or about May 26, 2006, patient CP reported Respondent's conduct during the May 17 24, 2006, treatment session to the Board.

18 35. On or about July 11, 2006, Division of Investigation (DOI) Investigator Cristina
19 Vasquez (Vasquez) was assigned to investigate patient CP's complaint to the Board about 20 Respondent. On or about September 20, 2007, Vasquez requested patient CP's acupuncture 21 records from Respondent at his address of record, per the Board's records, of 2211 Oak Street, 22 Santa Monica, California. Respondent did not reply to this request, nor to Vasquez's second 23 request for records, which was sent to the Oak Street address in Santa Monica, California, and 24 returned as undeliverable.

25 36. On or about November 14, 2007, Vasquez requested Respondent's current address of 26 record from the Board. According to Board records Respondent's address was still 2211 Oak 27 Street, Santa Monica, California. On or about November 27, 2007, Vazquez contacted 28 Respondent by phone, and asked him to provide a current address so she could mail him a request

1 for patient records. Respondent provided the address of 2211 Oak Street, Santa Monica, 2 California. When told this address was returning mail Respondent refused to provide a current 3 address. Respondent stated he was no longer in California. He provided Vasquez with a mailing
4 address in Los Angeles, California. Respondent stated he had stopped practicing acupuncture
5 approximately one month prior to this call (i.e., on or about October 27, 2007).

6 37. Respondent told Vasquez that when he had been in practice, he was in a private 7 acupuncture practice located at 1513 6th Street, Santa Monica, California. Respondent stated he 8 had a Santa Monica, California business license to practice acupuncture at the 6th Street address.
9 Respondent denied ever practicing out of his residence at the Oak Street address. At no time 10 during this discussion did Vasquez provide any details with regard to the complaint she was 11 investigating.

12 38. On or about November 27, 2007, Vasquez mailed Respondent another request for 13 patient CP's records to the address Respondent provided. On or about December 13, 2007, 14 Vasquez phoned Respondent to follow up on the third request for records she had sent.
15 Respondent now stated that as of August 31, 2007, he closed his acupuncture practice, 16 subsequently destroyed all of his treatment records, and was no longer living in the country.
17 Vasquez attempted to obtain additional information from Respondent about where he was now 18 residing, but Respondent was very reluctant to cooperate, accusing Vasquez of being too 19 aggressive and asking him too many questions. He refused to answer any further questions.
20 Vasquez requested that Respondent provide a written statement with regard to the destruction of 21 patient CP's records, and Respondent agreed to do so. Other than providing Respondent with 22 patient CP's full name Vasquez provided no further details with regard to the complaint she was 23 investigating.

24 39. On or about January 8, 2008, Vasquez received a written letter from Respondent 25 containing another document entitled "Statement" with regard to patient CP's record and 26 treatment provided to Patient CP. One of the documents was signed by "Joseph Mulvenna" and 27 the typewritten portion stated Respondent could not find the requested records 28

1 and SOAP<sup>5</sup> notes. In summary, the document entitled "Statement" acknowledged meeting patient 2 CP in 1996, and providing her with bodywork treatment, and providing her with treatment while 3 she was attempting to conceive.

4 40. Respondent also said, inter alia, that patient CP had no concept of boundaries. As 5 evidence of this assessment, Respondent cited an alleged request from patient CP and her 6 husband for Respondent to donate his sperm via personal intercourse with patient CP.
7 Respondent also stated that patient CP married her husband to obtain a "green" card.

8 41. On or about January 8, 2008, Vasquez spoke to patient CP about some of the 9 statements made by Respondent in the correspondence he provided to Vasquez. Patient CP
10 unconditionally denied all of Respondent's statements, stating they were complete lies. Patient 11 CP told Vasquez she believed Respondent made the false statements to remove the focus from 12 Respondent's own wrongdoing.

13 42. On or about January 23, 2008, Vasquez contacted the City of Santa Monica to 14 determine if Respondent ever had a business license to practice acupuncture out of his home at 15 2211 Oak Street, Santa Monica, California. Investigation revealed that the city had no record of 16 Respondent having an acupuncture business at his home address.

17 43. On or about May 24, 2006, Respondent engaged in an act of sexual abuse and/or 18 misconduct when he put on rubber gloves, approached patient CP as she lay on the treatment 19 table, spread patient CP's legs and inserted his gloved hand into the vagina of patient CP.
