"Unprofessional conduct shall include, but not be limited to, the following:

"(a) Using or possessing any controlled substance as defined in Division 10 (commencing with Section 11000) of the Health and Safety Code, or dangerous drug or alcoholic beverage to an extent or in a manner dangerous to himself or herself, or to any other person, or to the public, and to an extent that the use impairs his or her ability to engage in the practice of acupuncture with safety to the public.

FIRST CAUSE FOR DISCIPLINE
(Repeated Negligent Acts)

7. Respondent is subject to disciplinary action under section 4955.2, subsection (b) of the Code in that he committed repeated negligent acts in the care and treatment of patient S.M.\(^1\)

The circumstances are as follows:

8. Patient, S.M, a then 30-year-old-female, had an initial patient visit with Respondent on or about March 31, 2009. S.M. presented with chronic back, neck and arm pain associated with a work-related injury for which she took SOMA and Darvocet. S.M. was referred to Respondent by her orthopedic surgeon for acupuncture treatment to relieve her pain. Besides her injury, S.M. presented in good health and had no history of respiratory problems. During this visit, Respondent administered acupuncture treatment to S.M. without complaints.

8. On or about April 6, 2009, S.M. returned to Respondent’s office for acupuncture treatment. Respondent administered acupuncture treatment at the following points: GB-20, GB-21, Bai Lao, SI-12, SI-13, and UB-10. Due to close proximity to the lung the GB-21 point is a potentially dangerous point, and SI-12 and SI-13 are well-known dangerous points, to all acupuncturists providing treatment. The standard of practice for treatment at such points close to the lung is to use insertion of short needles.\(^2\) The use of long needles\(^3\) increases the risk for miscalculating depth of insertion and pneumothorax (collapsed lung). Respondent inserted long, 1.5 inch needles at these points instead of short needles.

9. The standard of care for insertion to the point GB-21 is to use the technique known as the pinching method.\(^4\) Use of the pinching method at GB-21 greatly reduces risk of

\(^1\) The names of patients are kept confidential to protect their privacy, but will be revealed to Respondent upon his written request for discovery.

\(^2\) Short needles are defined as 0.5 to 1 inch needles.

\(^3\) Long needles are defined as 1.5 to 4 inch needles, which are best used for fleshy areas.

\(^4\) The pinching method requires that the practitioner pinches up the trapezius muscle at the GB-21 point.
pneumothorax. Respondent failed to employ this method when he administered acupuncture at the GB-21 point.

10. As Respondent inserted the last two needles, patient S.M. felt an intense, sharp pain. After insertion of all the needles, Respondent left the treatment room and did not return until about 15 minutes later. S.M. then complained to Respondent of intense pain where Respondent had inserted the last two needles. Respondent adjusted the two needles, then left the room again for several minutes. When he returned, S.M. again complained that she was still experiencing intense pain. Respondent then removed the two needles and began massaging the area with his elbow. S.M. reported that the pain became more intense with the massage, and asked Respondent to stop massaging the area. Respondent then removed the rest of the needles and left the room for several minutes. During this time S.M. began to experience difficulty breathing and worsening pain.

11. After Respondent returned to the treatment room, S.M. complained of difficulty breathing and worsening pain. Respondent informed S.M. that he might have punctured her lung and insisted on driving S.M. to the hospital, instead of calling 911 at S.M.'s request. During the ride to the hospital, Respondent repeatedly urged S.M. to withhold the fact that her symptoms were attributed to the acupuncture treatments that Respondent had administered. The hospital later diagnosed S.M. with pneumothorax.

12. In his Board interview, Respondent explained that he had performed the same treatments on other patients with no problems and was unsure as to how or why the treatment may have caused pneumothorax.

13. Respondent committed repeated negligent acts and/or omissions in the care and treatment of patient S.M. as follows:

A. By failing to use short needles for insertions close to the lung when he administered acupuncture to S.M;
B. By failing to employ the pinching method when he inserted the needle to the GB-21 point;
C. By failing to observe the patient for 30 minutes following needle insertion, in accordance with practice standards and despite reports from the patient of symptoms of severe pain and difficulty breathing; and
D. By repeatedly attempting to conceal the fact that his acupuncture treatment caused the patient’s injury, a deception which could have delayed the emergency room’s diagnosis of pneumothorax.

SECOND CAUSE FOR DISCIPLINE
(Incompetence)

14. Respondent is subject to disciplinary action under section 4955.2, subsection (c), of the Code in that he exhibited incompetence in the care and treatment of patient S.M. The circumstances are as follows:
15. The facts and circumstances described in paragraphs 7 through 12 are incorporated herein as if set forth in full.

2. Ordering Jonathan Hwakan Wu, L.Ac. to pay the Acupuncture Board the reasonable costs of the investigation and enforcement of this case, pursuant to Business and Professions Code section 4959;
3. If placed on probation, ordering him to pay to the Acupuncture Board the costs of probation monitoring; and
