CAUSE FOR DISCIPLINE

(Sexual misconduct)

9. Respondent is subject to disciplinary action under code sections 726 in that he committed acts of sexual misconduct with Patient A. during acupuncture treatment. The circumstances are as follows:

10. Between March or April 2009 and October, 2009, Patient A., a 34 year old female, went to Respondent's office for acupuncture treatment for low back pain. On October 2, 2009,
Patient A. arrived at Respondent's office at approximately 5:00 p.m. She informed Respondent that she had low back pain and a bad cold.

11. Patient A. was placed in a treatment room, and laid down on a treatment table. Respondent told her to take off her blouse and she laid face down on the treatment table. He placed needles in her and left the room.

12. Respondent re-entered the room, performed a cupping treatment, then left the room. He returned to the room, and told Patient A. that he would perform qigong massage to help the chi flow through her body. He informed her that her mid-section was hot and that her feet were cold, and stated that qigong massage would unblock the blocked areas and let energy flow to improve her health. He told her to remove her pants. Patient A. left her bra and panty on.

Respondent did not provide Patient A. with a towel or sheet to cover her body. Respondent performed some massage with his elbow and during the massage, he asked the patient if she was married, if she had a boyfriend, and if her boyfriend lived in the city. He did not ask her any questions about her back pain, which was the reason she had sought treatment.

13. As Respondent talked, he began massaging her upper thigh area using his fingertips. Respondent removed Patient A.'s panty, and told her that the energy was trapped and he need to work in that area. Respondent continued using his fingertips to touch her in a rapid manner in the top of her inner thigh and in her genital area. He began rubbing and pressing on her perineum. Patient A. told him to stop and asked if he would focus on her back. Respondent repeated that her feet were cold and her midsection was hot, and it was very necessary to open up these blocked channels. He stated that she was very sick, and to feel healthy, she needed the energy to flow throughout her body. He told her that the way to allow the energy to flow was to allow him to massage the areas where the energy was blocked.

14. Respondent again began pressing his fingertips in a rapid motion in Patient A.'s genital area. He began rubbing his fingertips in her vaginal area, and Patient A. said, "That's enough." Respondent did not stop, and she repeated in a firm tone, "That's enough", and he stopped. Patient A. informed Respondent that her back still hurt, and asked that he focus on her back. She put her underwear back on and Respondent used his elbow to massage her back. As he massaged her back, he told Patient A. that it was important for her chi to flow. He stated that heat was trapped in her mid-section, and that she needed to open the channels of her body through massage to become healthy and get over her cold. He told her that the massage had nothing to do with whether she was male or female, and that it made no difference to him. He emphasized that his treatment was for her health, and that he knew she was a “good girl”. He stated that his intentions were only to treat her for physical health. Respondent told Patient A. that he was taking extra time with her because she had been referred by another acupuncturist who had been a former student. Respondent asked Patient A. for a few more minutes of massage to unblock her chi, and she agreed.

15. Patient A. laid back on the table, wearing her bra and panty. Respondent told her that she had stopped him twice, and that when she was not relaxed, her chi stopped flowing. He instructed her to close her eyes and not talk. Without saying anything to her, he pulled off her underwear. Patient A. opened her eyes, and Respondent instructed her again to close her eyes and not say anything. He began rapidly moving his fingertips in her genital area. He inserted his fingers inside her vagina. Immediately upon realizing this, Patient A. told Respondent to stop and said that she needed to leave.

16. Patient A. put her clothes on, and as she was walking out of his office, Respondent told her repeatedly that she was a “good girl,” that he did not like “bad girls,” and that if someone is a “bad girl” he does not see them anymore. He told Patient A. that she needed to see him for another session. Respondent tried to hug her and told her, “American girls are the best!” As Patient A. walked through the waiting room, she noticed that it was 9:15 p.m. and realized her treatment session had lasted almost four hours.

17. Respondent’s acts of removing Patient A.’s underwear without her consent, repeatedly massaging Patient A.’s genital area and inserting his fingers in Patient A.’s vagina constitutes sexual misconduct in violation of code section 726 and is cause to discipline his license.
